Abstract: The type specimens (all current categories) of sixty-nine names in Fulgoromorpha, Cicadomorpha and Sternorrhyncha housed in this Museum are listed. In order to assist future research, two lists are added: 1. of specimens labeled as types of names not found in the bibliography, and probably not published, and 2. of specimens labeled as types but not included in the original publications, published thereafter or not.

Key words: Type specimens, Insecta, Hemiptera, Fulgoromorpha, Cicadomorpha, Sternorrhyncha.

Resumen: Catálogo de los tipos de Fulgoromorpha, Cicadomorpha y Sternorrhyncha (Insecta, Hemiptera) depositados en el Museo Argentino de Ciencias Naturales, Buenos Aires. Se catalogan los ejemplares tipo (todas las categorías aceptadas) de sesenta y nueve nombres de Fulgoromorpha, Cicadomorpha y Sternorrhyncha conservados en este Museo. Para facilitar futuras investigaciones, se agregan dos listas: 1. de ejemplares rotulados como tipos, de nombres no hallados en la bibliografía, y probablemente no publicados, y 2. de ejemplares rotulados como tipos, pero no incluidos en la publicación original, y publicados después, o no.

Palabras clave: Ejemplares tipo, Insecta, Hemiptera, Fulgoromorpha, Cicadomorpha, Sternorrhyncha.

INTRODUCTION

A catalog of the type specimens (all current categories) of species of Homoptera housed in the Entomological Division of this Museum is presented, referred to sixty-nine names. The specific and subspecific epithets are alphabetically filed in a single list, followed by the generic ones, in their original spellings. A brief bibliographic quoting is given, as well as a list of specimens examined, if these were mentioned. An account of the types actually here housed follows, with description of all their labels. Later nomenclatural and taxonomic changes are added, insofar these are known by the author. When no name-bearing type, or an equivalent was designated, nor the amount of specimens examined was stated, it is assumed that there was a series of syntypes (eventually a "sole syntype") (Recommendation 73 F of the International Code of Zoological Nomenclature, 1999). In geographical mentions, if the country is not mentioned, Argentina is meant.

Some specimens in the collection are labeled as types of names not found in the bibliography, and assumed not to have been published; such names are probably not available in the sense of the Code; however, in order to assist future research, they are separately listed. Specimens labeled as types, but not mentioned in the original publication, published thereafter or not, conform a further separate list. Specimens labeled as types, but not intended as types, are not acceptable; however, also in order to assist future research, one is included under a third heading [Taracticus chilensis (Spinola) Bergl].

At his death in 1892, Hermann Burmeister was followed by Carlos Berg as the Director of the Museo Público de Buenos Aires, now Museo Argentino de Ciencias Naturales, this Museum; Berg increased (chiefly with Lepidoptera, Hemiptera and Coleoptera) the entomological collection started by Burmeister, and held another collection at the University of Buenos Aires; this one was transferred by 1970 to the Museum. Burmeister did not label each specimen; instead he fastened to the bottom of the drawer, in front of each specific series, handwritten labels with the names of genus and/or species, sometimes with a vague geographic reference, like “Rep. Arg.” for Argentina or “Patag.” for Patagonia; his “types” are not identified (nor designated in the publications), and therefore only hardly recognisable. Specimens of Burmeister’s collection are frequently identified with a label reading “Colección Antigua” (Ancient Collection), as they conformed the basis of the entomological collection of the Museum.

Carlos Berg used to attach to his pinned types tiny, red framed labels with “Typus” printed in red. The collection of Jean Brèthes was deposited long ago in this Museum.

After the decease of Everard E. Blanchard, his family donated to the Museum his library and his collection, chiefly Diptera and Hymenoptera, but also rich in Aphids.

Note: The “Typus” label is puzzling. “Type species of the new genus” was probably meant.
